WOULDN'T HURT A FLEA

Nyhan says this 12-foot python, which dines on five-pound rabbits, is completely harmless to humans.

FAIR WARNING

These signs on the front of James Nyhan's store give prospective patrons a good idea of what's inside.

There's no hiss-teria involved, but some do find it hysterical

The buxom matron in the prim white dress nearly dropped her bag of groceries as she ambled past the store window at 6819 Mission St., Daly City.

Out of the corner of her eye she saw a tiny green face staring at her from inside the glass. She gasped when she found to her horror that it belonged to one of four gigantic snakes that were happily twining themselves around tree branches.

The two pythons and two boa constrictors are window dressing for "The Creature Exchange," an exotic pet store that owner James Nyhan opened last week.

Nyhan's plan to sell snakes, spiders and reptiles caused some mild hiss-teria two weeks back when the City Council envisioned small boys dropping the creepy crawlers in little girls' laps.

But Nyhan talked the council into approving his use permit and opened his shop June 1.

Nyhan won't sell his four big snakes, one of which is 12 feet long and weighs 80 pounds. He explained that they're part of his collection.

But he will sell baby boas and pythons, other snakes, tarantulas, scorpions, frogs, turtles, chameleons and other lizards.

He assured the council that none of his inventory will escape because he has triple locks on the doors and an unbreakable plexiglass front window.

Even if the creatures did escape, he said they couldn't hurt anybody because all are non-poisonous.

Nyham's home on Second Avenue in Colma is a different story. It looks like something out of Dante's "Inferno."

For five years, Nyhan's mailman never suspected a thing. Then he happened to deliver a package on a day when Nyhan had taken the front window curtains down to wash them.

Glancing in the window, the mailman found himself face-to-face with a very large python.

Colma Fireman Ray Lencione had an even worse experience. He came to Nyhan's home to drop off a king snake that someone had found. A friend had told Lencione that Nyhan liked snakes.

NOT EXACTLY CUDDLY

Lencione wasn't prepared for the reception he got after he walked up the front walk past a coffin and piles of crates.

His first clue that something strange inhabited the house was the peculiar odor he smelled when he entered the living room dominated by a day-glo painting on black velvet of four headless horsemen riding through the flames of Hell.

Suddenly Lencione realized with shock that two huge pythons were slithering all over the furniture. Nyhan was letting them have an afternoon romp.

Visitors who steady themselves for a tour of the entire house will find macaws munching on the kitchen windows, parrots and parakeets sitting on top of kitchen cabinets, chameleons clinging to the curtains, tarantulas in the bathroom and a raccoon and raven in the backyard.

Nyhan is nursing the raccoon and raven back to health. A friend found the raccoon in San Francisco, suffering from an infected eye

The San Francisco Zoo asked him to tend the raven because its wing was wounded. Nyhan was surprised when the bird with the three-foot wing span looked him in the eye and squawked, "Hello, baby!"

The muscular man with slicked-back hair and tattoos covering his arms scratched the raccoon under the chin like a cat as he walked by its cage. The raccoon jumped up on its hind legs, stuck its tiny paws through the mesh and begged Nyhan to keep scratching.

The high point of the house tour is in the basement — on the other side of a bolted and locked door posted with emergency medical instructions in English and Spanish.

As Nyhan entered the room, closing the door firmly behind him, a small rattling noise began and built to a crescendo. The windows in the room were cemented shut.

Nyhan explained that he keeps 100 rattlesnakes there, ranging in length from a few inches to six feet, as well as boa constrictors, gila monsters, scorpions, black widows and lizards called water monitors that are related to komodo dragon and grow to be nine feet long.

Several of the rattlesnakes leered out of their aquarium tank homes and flicked black tongues as the 38-year-old man recalled that his fascination with animals began with the guppies he had as a child.

A friend gave him his first snake

Water rates to rise again

It's not how, but how much

Daly City residents will share with San Francisco residents the prospect of being charged more for using less water, if Daly City has its way.

Daly City will propose at a June 11 public hearing a 10 percent increase in water rates to offset the 12 percent increase in the cost of water effective July 1 that the San Francisco Water Department sells to Daly City.

Daly City just raised its water rates by 15 percent last July.

In proposing the new increase, the city staff argued that the Daly City water system has suffered a $185,660 loss over the last eight fiscal years and said, "Revenue has not been sufficient to cover both yearly operating costs and facility improvements and replacements."

When it raised its rates, San Francisco noted that citizens have been using less water since the drought but said its costs are increasing. Daly City reports that its citizens, too, have learned to live with less water.

Like other cities that buy water from San Francisco, Daly City traditionally passes along San Francisco's rate hikes to users.

Daly City's staff is proposing three ways to pass along the increase in the present rates of $7 for the first 600 cubic feet and 49 cents for each additional 100 cubic feet for most Daly City residents; and $9.30 for the first 600 cubic feet and 60 cents for each additional 100 cubic feet for Serramonte residents.

Serramonte residents use more San Francisco water than the rest of Daly City.

Under the first alternative, all rates would be increased by 10 percent, raising the basic Daly City rate to $7.70 and the basic Serramonte rate to $10.23.

In the second alternative, the rates would increase by 10 percent, then the difference between Daly City and Serramonte rates would be split, so most residents pay a basic rate of $7.90 and Serramonte residents a basic rate of $9.30.

Under the third alternative, all residents would pay the same basic rate of $8.08.

The first alternative would increase revenue to the city by $199,711, the second by $199,776, and the third by $200,708.

ON THE HORIZON

Residents of this proposed 326-condominium project on 110 acres of Reservoir Hill in Daly City will have a spectacular view. The developer, Presley of Northern California, based in Walnut Creek, will present the preliminary plan for the project to the Daly City Planning Commission June 12. It would be built between Crocker Avenue and Guadalupe Canyon Parkway in the northeastern part of Daly City.

Srock appeals again

Daly City Officer Stephan Srock plans to ask the State Supreme Court to block a dismissal hearing that two lower courts refused to delay.

Srock, suspended with pay since March 15 for alleged misconduct during a routine traffic stop, has filed a suit against the city, the Police Department and five city officials in which he charges that he is being denied a fair dismissal hearing.

San Mateo County Superior Court Judge Melvin E. Cohn denied Srock's request for a writ of prohibition to prevent Daly City from holding the dismissal hearing. Last Thursday, the state Court of Appeals upheld Cohn's decision.

Srock's attorney, Charles Garry, said Tuesday that he plans to file an appeal with the State Supreme Court today.

Meanwhile, Daly City City Manager David Rowe said the city is proceeding with its plans to hold Srock's dismissal hearing and that he will appoint a hearing officer to officiate at the hearing within a few days.

At Cohn's suggestion, the City Council agreed to hire a hearing officer who is not affiliated with the city. It will be the first time an outsider officiates at a Daly City hearing.

However, Rowe will have the final say on whether Srock will be fired.

Srock is accused of pointing a gun at a dog in a car that he had pulled over to the side of the road. Srock claims that the Police Department changed its original report on the incident, which cleared him of wrongdoing, to make his personnel record look bad.

The Police Department claims that new information caused it to rewrite the report. The second report recommends that Srock be disciplined stringently.

Guild's new leaders

It is change of command time for the members of the Holy Angel's Women's Guild.

Mrs. Dianne Leonetti, for the past two years publicity chairman for the guild, will assume the duties of president at an installation during the celebration of Mass Thursday evening.

A small reception will follow the rites and then the members will assemble and respond to the call to order by outgoing President Mrs. Audrey Zanobini. A formal passing of the gavel will be held, and Mrs. Leonetti will introduce the members of her board. Serving during the 1979-1980 term will be Mrs. Bonnie Hammill, vice president; Mrs. Barbara Reich, treasurer; Mrs. Mimi Ordonio,, recording secretary; Mrs. Terri Lagomarsino, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Martha Ruiz, membership chairman.

The Mass will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the church. Members and friends are invited.

Mrs. Emily Sumrall, president of the Balboa High School Alumni Association, reports that the June executive board meeting, scheduled for this Thursday evening, has been cancelled as has been the June 9 trip to the railroad museum in Fairfield.

Blame conflicting schedules for the first cancellation and the gas shortage for the second.

Members of the board of directors will next meet July 5, when final plans for the August picnic in San Bruno City Park will be made.

Monday the members of the American Association of Retired Persons will celebrate the chapter's sixth anniverary with a lunchon meeting.

Tickets to this party must be purchased in advance and guests are reminded not to forget their own cutlery.

The program will get underway at 11 a.m. with a community sing and songs by Gene Almay. Special guests at the party will be Daly City Mayor Victor Kyriakis, Councilman Anthony Giammona and the Assistant State Director of AARP Mrs. Doris Pratt.

Many local AARP members were among those attending the ninth annual senior citizen's conference last month at the College of San Mateo.

Ralph Stegmeir was the general chairman of the conference and the program of music wa provided by Johnny Messerschmidt. Fashions from Lane Bryant were shown following the meeting.

Tierney, who has been the club sponsor and teacher for the past 17 years, was awarded a silver horseman's buckle by the members of the student organization.

Among those on hand to congratulate Tierney and honor his dedication were club President Karen Holland, Mary Cosmides, secretary; Barbara Watson, treasurer; and members John Russell, Laurie Rovegno, Steve McBee, Amy Childers, Gigi Giacconi, Diane Hansen, Joe Gramboro, Theresa Riedell, Florence Cosmides and Mr. and Mrs. Tierney.

Mrs. Millie Dunow has returned to her Daly City home following a visit which combined assisting her mother, who was ill, and the joy of seeing her neice, Harriet Marie Otto, marry Jeffrey Vawter in a ceremony in the Biola Congregational Church this past Saturday.

Other local people who journeyed into the valley for the wedding and reception which followed at the Edison Social Club were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Movris.

Highlight of the recent Mary's Help Hospital Guild's Installation Mass and breakfast was the tribute, in the form of an Irish blessing, given by Father Gordon and interpreted with photographs done by Cyril and Renee Reilly.

With the permission of Father Gordon the tribute was as follows:

"May the blessing of light be with you — light outside and light within. May sunlight shine upon you and warm your heart 'til it glows like a great peat fire so that the stranger may come and warm himself by it. May a blessed light shine out of your two eyes like a candle set in two windows of a house, bidding the wanderer to come in out of the storm. May you ever give a kindly greeting to those whom you pass as you go along the roads. May the blessing of rain — sweet, soft rain — fall upon you so that little flowers may spring up to shed their sweetness in the air. May the blessing of the earth — the good rich earth — be with you. May the earth be soft under you when you rest upon it, tired at the end of the day. May earth rest easy over you when at the last you lie under it. May earth rest so lightly over you that your spirit may be out from under it quickly, and up and off and on its way to God."

Hillside condos win narrowly

A proposal to build 32 luxury condominiums in Daly City squeaked by Monday night on a 3-2 vote by the City Council.

It was doubtful that the project at the northeast intersection of Hyde Court and King Drive would be approved, since three of the five council members expressed concerns about it.

The developer, Thomas Safran, was irked last week when Councilman Anthony Giammona said he wanted time to inspect the site. Giammona said he was worried about the lack of guest parking and the steep incline upon which the units would be built.

In an unsuccessful move to speed the council's decision, Safran agreed at that time to eliminate one of the then-proposed 33 condominiums and put in three guest parking spots, pointing out that doing so might mean raising the price of the condominiums.

The audience gasped when Safran said he aims to sell the units for $110,000 to $140,000.

Ironically, Safran previously had tried to get backing for a federally subsidized housing project on the site last year. The Department of Housing and Urban Affairs turned down his proposal.

Safran's offer to compromise didn't work. Giammona insisted on having another week to look at the project.

Monday, Giammona said his worries have been confirmed. Although Safran brought along a geotechnical consultant, Peter Kaldveer, who said he had no worries about the project "from a seismic and mass stability standpoint," Giammona remained unconvinced.

"When I went out to the edge (of the site) and looked down, I was almost looking straight down," Giammona said.

Kaldveer outlined the developer's plans to stabilize the site by sinking a support wall into the slope.

Giammona scoffed, "When you're in Brazil, I'm going to still be here." Councilman Albert Teglia said he didn't like the idea of viewing a newly graded, barren slope from nearby Junipero Serra Boulevard. Safran agreed to put in landscaping on the slope.

"We are committed to a quality project here," he said. Safran brought along pictures to prove there is adequate parking on streets near the project site for guests, in addition to two spaces for each condominium and a total of three guest spaces.

The city staff recommends the second alternative and notes that the difference between Daly City and Serramonte rates could be eliminated by the next rate increase.

Other topics scheduled for discussion at the June 11 council meeting are:

• The council will have a public hearing on a request by the Daly City Cab Co. to increase its rates from 80 cents to $1 for each flag drop, from 80 cents to $1 per mile and from $8 to $10 per hour of waiting time.

• The council will consider amending the city code to allow City Manager David Rowe to designate a personnel officer. A reliable city source said Assistant Personnel Officer Cindy Parma is being considered for the new position.

• Mark Restani's request for a zone change to allow him to build a veterinary hospital at 1570 Bryant St. is scheduled for a public hearing. At their Monday study session, council members expressed concerns about soundproofing of the building and about the psychological impact the animal facility will have on the owners of the restaurant next door.

• The council will consider accepting as complete the Gellert Park Recreation Building that was dedicated June 2.

• The city staff will recommend that the council authorize the sale of a city-owned building at 782 Niantic St.

• The staff will ask for $10,000 for an engineering study that will allow the city to determine "scientifically" which streets require resurfacing and to what extent.

• Traffic Engineer Keith Dellaway will propose adding a traffic signal and crosswalks on Gellert Boulevard about midway between Serramonte and Hickey boulevards.

DC may self-insure to cover liability

A whopping 400 percent increase in liability insurance premiums over the last nine years has prompted Daly City to consider becoming self-insured for that type of insurance.

Daly City already is self-insured for worker's compensation insurance.

Ronald Mitchell, assistant to the city manager, recommends in a report that the City Council will discuss June 11 that the city operate its own liability self-insurance program rather than enter a joint powers self-insurance agreement with other cities in San Mateo County.

He points out that Daly City has watched its premiums increase from $71,679 in 1970-71 to $287,710 in 1978-79 and never has had paid losses exceeding $42,828 in any one of those years.

Mitchell's proposal, Daly City would pay all claims up to $100,000 and would be insured for claims from $100,000 up to $10 million.

The program would be implemented in a manner similar to the current worker's compensation self-insurance plan: city staff would coordinate the program, claims would be processed by an outside claims administrator, the loss fund would be controlled by the city, and advisory services would be provided by the same outside firm, Rollins Burdick Hunter.

Mitchell is requesting $195,100 from the general fund, $160,000 from the motor vehicle fund and $104,000 from the water fund to build a $459,100 fund to pay start-up costs.

If the council agrees to Mitchell's proposal, Daly City will terminate its present liability insurance policy with Home Insurance and other carriers at midnight June 30.

— a rattler — in 1967. Two years later Nyhan began filling up the nooks and crannies of his newly-bought house in Colma with more acquisitions.

He has won more than 1,000 awards for his fish and snakes at Aquarium Society shows. When the contests lost their challenge, he started judging.

Then he began traveling to remote parts of the world to collect some specimens, such as a large, alligator-looking lizard called a chuckwalla that grows on only one island in the Sea of Cortez.

He and some friends were caught in a hurricane on an island during one rattlesnake-collecting expedition and had to huddle for three days under their overturned boat until the rain let up.

Customs officials stopped him on another trip and searched a large boa constrictor for suspected drugs.

Today Nyhan is a well-established breeder of fish, snakes and reptiles who contributes some of his stock to the Steinhart Aquarium and San Francisco Zoo.

When Nyhan visits his snakes in their new homes, he said they come over to the front of their cages as if to nod hello.

Nyhan is so well known in his field that he has worked on committees advising the state Department of Fish and Game. The California Academy of Science stops by to collect venom from his snakes for research projects.

Egged on by his daughter, Nyhan began taking part of his collection to "show and tell time" at some of the local schools about five years ago.

"I hold up a boa constrictor and ask them what they think it is. They come up with some pretty strange ideas. Most of them think it's going to kill them," he chuckled.

He attributes the children's fear to parents and grandparents who constantly warn them, "Stay away. It will bite."

Stroking a pink-and-black spotted gila monster, Nyhan explained that the snakes, spiders and reptiles in his deadly collection are very gentle creatures that usually don't bite.

He said he has been bitten only twice, both times by rattlesnakes, and that it was his own fault. Although he spent several days in the hospital recovering from the bites, Nyhan said the chances that a snake will inject venom when it bites are about 50-50.

"The odds of dying from a rattlesnake bite are pretty small," he said.

Bouncing a tarantula with a six-inch leg span from hand to hand, Nyhan said the hairy spiders are completely harmless. If they get extremely upset, he noted they might rub off a few hairs on a victim that irritate the skin but aren't poisonous.

He said black widow spider bites merely make people sick and scorpion bites have no effect.

The collector of strange pets couldn't recall a single time one of his boa constrictors or pythons had bitten him or tried to squeeze him.

Nyhan said it would take a 20-foot snake to overpower a man by tightening itself around the man's lungs until he couldn't breathe.

When Nyham decided to devote himself to this unusual business five years ago, he ended a 17-year lucrative career as a construction worker and found he had to alter his style of living.

"I can't buy a new car every three or four years anymore," he said.

He cuts costs by breeding chickens and mice in his backyard. The chickens are for him and the mice are for his snakes.

His large snakes go for months without eating. Nyhan feeds them deformed rabbits that he obtains from breeders. The rabbits are swallowed in a single gulp.

Nyhan stressed that the pets he sells will be completely harmless and that he'll try to match them to their owners' personalities.

For example, he said a little old lady who loves plants would enjoy a tree frog that will live contentedly in a terrarium for years.

He recommends easy-to-care-for animals, like small lizards, for children.

He said a gardener who hates using pesticides might enjoy a box turtle, which gobbles snails.

Asked what would be the perfect pet for a macho-type man, Nyhan replied, "I'd just as soon not sell anything to that person because he probably would spend more time showing it off than taking care of it."

California's fascinating story

Samuel Chandler

California. The land of the golden promise, the last bastion of romance, a land convinced of its own importance. The historian, T. H. Watkins, wrote that "Even today Californians carry the light of tomorrow in their eyes, which is only as it should be in the land of the Sundown Sea."

Reading the story of California with its beauty and its color is an adventure that should not be missed. In a collection of novels that came to the Daly City Public Library recently, the story can be found. One of these stories, Jane Allen's "I Lost My Girlish Laughter," was created during the heyday of the film industry. As the story unfolds, the reader is taken inside Hollywood through excerpts from the diary of a secretary to a film executive and through examination of letters and telegrams. It is a shocker, a dime novel kind of story that saw the cheap sensational things of Hollywood as well as the good and beautiful.

A much older novel, with a woman as the principal character, is Gertrude Atherton's "Ancestors." Here is a story of contrast and change, both in terms of cultural and historic events. The fire and agony of the San Francisco earthquake of 1906 forms a never-to-be-forgotten picture. From the pen of the mentor of the flappers and the women's libbers, it's interesting reading.

One of the most controversial and still vital novels of California life bears the simple title "Seed." Charles Norris created it to be a chronicle of a fictional, but plausible, community in the Santa Clara Valley. Into the story the problems of birth control are introduced to discolor the transition of the agriculture and social classes of California. A new Charles Norris is needed to picture the life led by the children and grandchildren of the founders of villages of the famed "Bay Area."

On the other hand, Frank Norris' "The Octopus" pictures the conflict that was incidental to the commerce between the wheat ranchers and the railroad builders who did so much to create present day California. The climax of the story comes during a Mussel Slough tragedy of May 1880. It has been called "the most ambitious novel of its generation" and one of the most intriguing novels of California ever written.

From Monterey comes Stewart Edward White's "Folded Hills" to ensnare the reader in the life of a family with an Anglo father deals with the conflicts met by the children of such a marriage. Although nearly 50 years old, White's story rings of modern times and problems.

"The Gentleman from California" is Niven Busch's story of the raw ambition that California seems to generate. In the story a driving, hard-hitting man climbs the political ladder until he is nominated for President. Then an army of press agents move in to build the man's image, with no thought of the effects upon his character, and tragedy follows. It is said that the whole story was inspired by the promises made by the early career of Richard Nixon.

In "Mother Felipe and Other Early Stories," by Mary Austin, the adventures of California during the beginning of the American period are painted through one short story after another. Mary Austin's contribution to literature is as enduring as the state she helped to create, with her pen as a tool.

Others in the collection include Steinbeck's Monterey novels and Kathryn Forbes' ever popular picture of the Mission District of San Francisco, "Mama's Bank Account." Then there's Jack London's "The Valley of the Moon," Jonreed Lauritzen's tribute to Junipero Serra, "The Cross and a mother from a Spanish heritage. The novel and the Sword," and several collections of the great Bret Harte. Gwen Bristow's "Calico Palace" traces a most unfortunate heroine through five San Francisco fires.

Perhaps the precursor of all California was Queen Calafia, leader of a mythical band of warrior women whose tradition lives in California fiction. One of their daughters in spirit is Concha Ceballos Douglas, principal character of Ibanez Vincente Blasco's "Queen Calafia."

The fiction of California should not be passed over. It is both a picture of the state's past and an expression of the various writers' concern for the land that has lured the dreamers for hundreds of years.

The Regent

By GENNY HOM
Commissioner of Outside Publicity

High school students from throughout the district participated in a journalism class-sponsored press conference recently at Serramonte High.

The press conference, entitled "The Effects of Proposition 13 and Declining Enrollment on Our School District," was the first ever of its kind in district history.

The purpose of the student press conference was to provide a free exchange of ideas and dialogue between student journalists and members of the Jefferson Union High School District Board of Trustees.

James Roman, board president, and Trustee Ruth Boudinot were guests of the conference.

Proposition 13 and declining enrollment has indeed greatly affected our schools.

Cuts have been made with the dismissal of nurses, club advisors, and, recently, 19 teachers.

Transportation may be affected in the list of possible budget cuts. Students might have to find their own way to school, perhaps on public transportation systems, using special rates. The student will have to pay for this.

When asked about the possibility of making cuts at the top, i.e. the administrators, rather than student activities, Roman replied that he and Mrs. Boudinot were at the top. "We're operating on a bare-bones budget. We're at the top and there isn't a whole lot to cut there. Now, we've got to look down and there's Superintendent Floyd Gonella next. We've got to pay him enough money so he won't go out looking for another job. That's the way most managers get paid. If he's doing a good job, he gets enough, if he's not doing a good job, he gets fired. Obviously, this board is very pleased with the job Dr. Gonella has done thus far. We want to keep him here."

Continuing, Roman went down to the assistant superintendents. The Jefferson district has two assistant suprintendents, Dr. Gross and Dr. Riggs. Roman said, "Two assistant superintendents is a very small number for a district this size. A lot of other districts have four or five doing the job our two assistant superintendents do. As a matter of fact, we have two assistant superintendents, down from three we had last year. So we've already cut at that level. Moving on down a step below are the principals. Each high school needs a principal. What I'm trying to say is that the way we perceive the top, we don't see a lot of fat there."

He added, "The bulk of the money we spend comes at the school level. The clerical staff, maintenance people, lighting bills, water bills, gasoline for the buses, and bus drivers all have to be paid. When I say a lot, I mean 90 percent of the money we have to spend exists at that level where kids can go out and touch it every day on a daily basis. It's very reasonable that the kids would see the cuts that are made very readily, because they're in contact with it all the time. but that's where the money is. We put it there in the first place. When we have to cut it out, people will know we're cutting it out."

As for sports and clubs for next year, that is still up in the air. So far, club advisors have been cut and a club can exist only if someone volunteers to advise it. Mrs. Boudinot felt that some clubs are educational, but the funds had to be cut somewhere. If the district gets enough money from the state, then clubs might be put back.

When asked why student opinion was taken before these cuts were made, Roman replied that he didn't feel clubs were an essential and necessary part of the learning process.

One student asked when the board anticipated a school closure because of declining enrollment and short funds. The answer to this question was perhaps in September of 1981.

Times are changing, and so are schools. As Roman put it, "Unfortunately, we don't have as much money as we'd like to have. Education is changing. The school district next year is not going to be the same as it was this year. It's going to be different. Different doesn't necessarily mean worse. I would hope we could do our jobs harder so that we could do a better job with less. And that's a challenge."

I would like to remind all of you that the board meetings are open to the public. If you don't like something that is happening, by all means go to the board meetings and voice your opinion.

Serramonte's chapter of the California Junior Statesmen Foundation will sponsor a forum on the closing of a school in our district. Various community groups, the Board of Trustees, the teachers' union, students and other individuals have been invited.

The forum will be Thursday in the faculty room at Serramonte High at 7:30 p.m. For more information, contact Mr. Goldberg, Maria Bautista, or Junior State members.

Unique significance of 'Children's Sunday'

Perspective

By ARVILLE FINACOM

Although it ranks far below Mother's Day and Father's Day in popular celebration, Children's Sunday, the second Sunday in June, has a significance uniquely its own if one accepts the dictum, "The child is father to the man."

As a nation, we claim to honor children. In fact, many other cultures tell us we are too "child-centered/youth-oriented." Some of us, believing we always do best by our children, go as far as to disparage the special United Nations-sponsored International Year of the Child in which we stand midway, saying, "Every year and every day belong to children."

But do they, really? Child abuse, although probably not on the statistical upswing media would have us believe (more cases are reported than previously), still is more prevalent in our culture than we would like to admit. Statistics for the year 1977 list over a million incidents of physical abuse of children by their parents.

Poor nutrition, inadequate health care, and hunger punish many young ones. Last June, President Jimmy Carter, in announcing plans for the United States National Commission on the International Year of the Child, shared the statistics that 10 million children in the U.S. never have had medical care and that half of all our young people never have seen a dentist in their lives.

Oppression and suppression, often in the guise of "teaching discipline," occur daily. As a result, 1.5 million children become "runaways" or "cast-outs" annually. It would seem that society is intent on making sure that the "father-in-the-child" will become no different than the current adult, short-sighted and inadequate as he/she may be.

There are two reactions to any detailed look at children's history. One is incredulity/disregard; the other, belief/action. Disbelievers cite juvenile delinquency and crime rate statistics, point to the number of school dropouts and failures and the increase in child and youth suicides, then argue for a return to stronger societal controls over children and youth as the "only" action needed.

Believers argue that an end to discrimination and child abuse, both overt and subtle, is vitally necessary and continuing action must be taken daily. Between the two views lies no middle ground.

As an example, consider my experience in a seminar last summer concerned with planning for IYC. Rev. Curtis Peters, a parish pastor from St. Paul, Minn. and IYC coordinator for the American Lutheran Church, was met head-on midway through his presentation by the militant anger of a pastor's wife, herself a mother, who would not accept Peters' premise that children have "rights." "Needs" she was willing to allow, but "rights," according to her thinking, belonged only to "adults."

That she was unable to define "adult" bothered few in the room. Rapidly, workshop participants chose sides, and instead of listening to one another, began to brand each other with current labels. What frightened me most about the exchange was the close-mindedness of all those involved, traditionalists and liberal child-advocates alike.

I suppose it is only logical to assume that the change in thought from children's needs to rights would be as threatening to many as any of the other current crusades. Its validity, however, doesn't seem open to much question if one remembers personal childhood, the put-downs, the denials experienced because of size and/or age, the constant clamoring of elders, "Why don't you grow up?" It's the lucky adult who remembers with joy the dreams, hopes, pleasures, and people of his youth.

We may agree that children's "rights" are legitimate, but a look at the structure of law shows that age is still a determiner. Because children lack political power (many say they would be totally unable to comprehend or wield it, anyhow) they must rely on adults to do what's "best" for them. Sometimes the unpunished travesties which occur in the name of juvenile justice seem worse than many crimes. Until very recently in California, juveniles who were separated from parents for reasons ranging from parental inability to care for and support them to parentally defined "incorrigibility" were routinely "sentenced," without hearing or trial, to time in juvenile hall, even though they had committed no crime for which an adult could be charged, tried and convicted.

Philosophers continually regret the loss of the child-like characteristics of wonder and curiosity, which if carried into maturity mark the creative adult, the one who is able to bring a fresh approach to thinking and decision-making. Yet many schools, in the name of education, routinely label the creative child as "nonconformist" and take steps to quell his "incipient rebellion."

In perhaps the saddest situation, many children are no more than pawns, used by parents unwilling to admit personal immaturity or self-failure in a game plan designed to prove the adults' productive maturity. They are fed, clothed, housed, and entertained with countless external signs of love and affection for which they are expected to pay by becoming the embodiments of wish-fulfillment for their parents. In further contradiction, children also are supposed to grow up wiser and more adept than their parents at coping with life, but never have the temerity to say so or prove it in their parents' presence.

That children can and do exhibit concerns adult-like in their implication comes as a surprise to many parents and non-parents raised in a tradition where children never had anything important to say. In recent hearings before the Senate Human Resources Subcommittee on Child and Human Development chaired by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., elementary age students selected from among 5,000 who had participated in a nationwide letter-writing campaign to the committee listed their concerns about daily life in the United States.

Heading the list was concern about energy. With what could be considered insightful understanding, the children talked of a need to preserve our energy-based economy, but not at the cost of bankrupting their futures. Pollution, inflation, war, and smoking ranked next in order of concern. Granted, the children who responded probably are not typical.

THE DIET CORNER

Diet, diet, who's got the diet?

And how do you know if a diet is good? Good for you?

Hardly a month or week passes withou t the introduction of some new miracle method of weight loss. One article reports it.

A rash of stories and programs breaks out, all about the diet to end all diets. Just as suddenly as the craze began, it crashes to an end; and the dieters gain back what they lost. A few weeks later, another diet hits the news and the cycle starts once more.

There's a way to guard yourself against being caught up in the next diet epidemic. Use the following check list to determine if an eating program is one that can bring long-lasting weight control.

- Is the diet based on three meals per day plus snack?
- Are the foods varied with an abundant chlice in each of the four food groups?
- Are you dependent on some manufactured over-the-counter concoction with a high price instead of food?
- Does the diet rely on strict, monotonously repetitious meals of the same foods?
- Are the promised weight losses exhorbitantly unreal?
- Does the program include exercise and a way to change your eating habits?

Your answers show clearly if the diet is worthwhile. A good weight reduction diet is balanced nutritionally. It offers a protein and carbohydrate at each meal with sensible helpings of fruits, vegetables, and dairy products, too. There is variety so the dieter has choice. The foods are foods readily available in any market. You won't gag at the sight of another egg or grapefruit because tomorrow's meals are different from today's. You'll lose weight slowly and sensibly and surely, while you increase your physical activity and change your eating habits.

When the answers to your diet questions come back like that, you know you're on the right diet. You'll appreciate it even more when you discover diet dishes like Easy Skillet Stew.

EASY SKILLET STEW

2 pounds lean veal or beef, cubed
2 cups beef bouillon
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon thyme
2 tablespoon dried onion flakes
1 cup celery chunks
1½ cups tiny whole carrots

Brown meat in heavy skillet using ¼ cup beef bouillon. Over moderate heat, meat will simmer, absorb moisture and then brown. Stir and turn meat occasionally. Add seasonings, rest of bouillon, and the celery. Cover and simmer over low heat until meat is tender, about one hour. Add the carrots, cook uncovered until they are tender.

Interested in more good diet recipes? Send me a self-addressed size 10 envelope, stamped, with "Prize-Winning Recipes" writeen on the flap and mail it to me at The Diet Workshop, 25533 Taraval St., San Francisco 94116, and I'll take care of your request.

Good morning, good cooks.

Calico Bean Salad features the colorful duo of canned kidney or red and garbanzo beans. The beans are teamed up with green pepper and ham and are accented by a cooked sweet-sour dressing. For variety, the salad may be served either chilled or hot.

Not only do the beans add good flavor and economy to menus, but they offer a bonus in nutrition as well.

CALICO BEAN SALAD

1 can (15 oz.) garbanzo beans
1 can (15 oz.) kidney or red beans
1/3 cup diced green pepper
2 tablespoons pickle relish
1 to 1½ cups cubed ham
3 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup water
1/3 cup vinegar

Drain one can each garbanzo and kidney beans. Toss with 1/3 cup green pepper, two tablespoons pickle relish and one to 1½ cups cubed ham. Combine three tablespoons sugar, two teaspoons cornstarch, and ½ teaspoon salt in saucepan. Gradually stir in ¼ cup water and 1/3 cup vinegar. Cook, stirring, until thickened. Pour over beans. Serve hot or chilled. Serves 4 to 5.

A cat's night habits

By DR. BARNETT, DVM

QUESTION: Do animals sometimes have difficulty sleeping? We have a black cat who appears to be in good shape physically. The only thing is that he never seems to sleep at night. He prowls around the bedrooms purring and asking for attention, regardless of what time it is. We hate to put him out because he has been chewed up a couple of times. Does he need a tranquilizer?

—L. P.

ANSWER: Cats are nocturnal animals, meaning they do most of their sleeping in the daytime and are more active at night. Therefore, your cat does not need tranquilizers during his normal waking hours at night.

QUESTION: I know you have to be careful in giving a dog medicine. If liquid medicine doesn't go down right the dog is liable to choke. If you give him pills you have a hard time getting him to swallow them. Usually they just spit them up.

—P. N.

ANSWER: It is not harmful to give a dog a small quantity of liquid medicine. If you administer the liquid slowly, they will swallow it without much difficulty. However, if you give the liquid too fast they will cough and spit out the excess. Pills can be given with relative ease if administered with one tablespoon of canned dog food. You can hide the pill in the center of the dog food and it will be gobbled down at one bite.

QUESTION: Is it safe to bathe cats? Since they never develop an odor such as dogs do, they seem to be clean — but perhaps they need soap and water sometimes. What about a cat that is never let outdoors? Would you advise ever bathing this cat?

—V. S.

ANSWER: It is safe to bathe cats if you use either a mild pet shampoo or a mild baby shampoo. Most cats, however, do not like water and it may be a difficult job for one person to undertake. If it is necessary to bathe the cat only do it if he is excessively dirty or infested with fleas. Generally, cats will cleanse themselves with their tongue and our job is to brush their fur daily.

New La Potiniere has open-air terrace

ROGER NICOLAS' new LA POTINIERE French restaurant, located on the second level of Mateo Square, the exciting complex of shops and restaurants on Third Avenue, San Mateo, also has an open-air terrace with colorful garden umbrellas, as well as a unique wine bar with more than 150 vintages available by the glass in the bar or carafe or bottle in the dining rooms. An atmosphere of Gallic decor welcomes patrons at lunch and dinner. Roger, born in Quimperle on the South Coast of Brittany in France, brings to the Peninsula extensive restaurant background/experience gained in France and the U.S., including San Francisco, where he operated La Potiniere restaurant for four years ... Every day when the freshest of the day's catch comes into VINCE'S SEAFOOD DEPOT, you'll see the chef at VINCE'S ITALIAN AND SEAFOOD restaurant selecting for the menu. The restaurant, along with the fresh seafood market, comprises the landmark complex operated for so many years by Owner NINA LICATA and son/manager TONY ... Sweet-and-sour is one of the flavorings in Chinese food which is one of the favorites. Knowing this, Owner JOHN CHIANG has created no less than 10 different sweet-and-sour dishes for you to choose from at his GONG'S Chinese restaurant in South San Francisco. Take-out service, delivery and party catering also available.

La Bella Pasta receives fan mail

Patrons enthusiastic about the authentic Italian food and personalized service at LA BELLA PASTA in Foster City (in Edgewater Place Shopping Center, on the boardwalk overlooking the lagoon) write "fan letters" to Owner/chef SALVATORE FAVA to express their appreciation. One such testimonial was recently from Cece Gaillo, secretary of the Foster City Newcomers Club, whose group held their May monthly luncheon here ... Always seeking new ways to please their valued patrons, Owner KATHY WIMSATT and her staff at JOHN & KATHY'S restaurant and pub, South San Francisco, have added a new Salad Bar, which is automatically included with dinners. However, if you just want something light on a summertime evening, the Salad Bar is also available by itself for only $1.75 ... The new food service arrangement at LES JON'S CLAM HOUSE in Burlingame (adjacent to Hyatt Cinema on Old Bayshore) is making a big hit with longtime patrons, as well as attracting new customers. This quaint bar/restaurant, presided over by BOB CELLITTI, STAN PANDOLFI and JON MILLER, serves lunch Mondays through Fridays, dinners seven nights a week, including Sundays.

Superstars dine

If you want to rub elbows with the superstars of the entertainment world, stop by ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB in San Francisco for luncheon or dinner. It's on Geary Street across from the Curran and Geary theaters and there is always someone famous dining here ... Mickey Rooney, co-starring in "Sugar Babies" at the Curran in San Francisco, has an appetite as big as his reputation as an actor. He stopped by PHIL LEHR'S Pay-By-Ounce STEAKERY, on the lower level of the S.F. Hilton Tower, and downed a huge filet mignon steak, graciously signing autographs for admiring fans between bites ... Romantic tunes of old Mexico played by Guitarist TOM RIVERA are featured Thursday through Sunday nights at LA PINATA Mexican restaurant in downtown Burlingame. Lunch service from 11:30 a.m., with Mexican specialties served until 11 p.m. ... If you've enjoyed the home-cooked German and continental food at TILLIE'S 'LIL' FRANKFURT restaurant in Moss Beach (she also offers one of the largest selections of genuine imported German beers you're likely to find anywhere), you'll be happy to hear that TILLIE SCHOLTZ now has a banquet room for parties, club meetings or any special function by advance reservation. Tillie will also help you plan a menu.

L'Auberge menu

You'll find out-of-the-ordinary selections on the menu at LOUIS FRUTSCHI'S chic L'AUBERGE in Atherton/Redwood City. Boneless Curried Chicken, which is sauteed in white wine and curry sauce, garnished with tomatoes, bacon bits, horseradish and almonds, and served with fruit and rice, is a creation by Chef Rudy Camozzi ... In these times of skyrocketing prices, it's nice to discover a genuine bargain. A case in point is LEHR'S GREENHOUSE in San Francisco, where you can dine in an incomparable garden in full bloom with dinner prices starting at $5.95. But that's just half the story. Dinner patrons also get free admission to the adjoining Lehr's Cabaret Disco and Lehr's Bocce Opera Room. Free validated dinner parking ... JIM SNIADECKI of SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S is receiving compliments galore on his made-to-order, all wool, Stewart Tartan, Scotch plaid tablecloths, which blend with the Scotch plaid of the wallpaper of his Redwood City restaurant ... There's a big difference in pizzas (just ask any true pizza lover) and it has long been known that some of the best to be found is at ROMANO'S Italian restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. Open seven days a week from 4 p.m. serving pizza, pastas, seafood, steaks and Italian specialties. Some years ago, in response to insistent demands from his patrons, Owner ENRICO ROMANO provided a take-out service for pizza and other specialties. Now it's a big part of the business.

Ever since JERRY LYERLA took over as new owner of JOHN'S PLACE, the old-timey "Working man's bar" in downtown Burlingame, he's been bringing in new ideas, latest of which is a Spaghetti Special on Mondays from 6 to 9 p.m. for only $1.50. "Happy hour" from 4 to 7 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. Open from 6 a.m. to 2 a.m. seven days a week. Dancing to live country and western music on Sunday nights ... One of the three great restaurants operated by the famed GUST family (NICK and LORRAINE and son CHUCK) at Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, is called CAPTAIN CHARLES, named in honor of one of the early forebears of the Gust family on the coastside more than three generations. Gourmet seafood is featured in a nautical Polynesian setting overlooking the surging Pacific Ocean through picture windows ... Like to take a late lunch to avoid the rush, talk a little business or do a little socializing? Then you'll appreciate the fact that BAYHILL LOUNGE, the friendly spot in Bayhill Shopping Center, San Bruno, serves lunch until 3 p.m. Full selection of super sandwiches, plus hot entrees and "specials of the day" (full bar service, also).

DON'T MISS THE DINE-OUT Vacation GUIDE Coming June 8

"I told you not to forget the BRIGHT LIGHTS Guide"

Down memory's basepath to the '62 Series

Le Pacini

Whenever my memories wander back to the 1962 Giants, the only San Francisco team to ever go to a World Series, I remember Orlando Cepeda and Jose Pagan and Jimmy Davenport, and the outfield of Harvey Kuenn playing in tandem with Willie McCovey, and the incomparable Willie Mays and Felipe Alou. I remember the great years the southpaws, Billy O'Dell and Billy Pierce had, and the 24 wins of Jack Sanford and the emerging of Juan Marichal, and the greatest softball pitcher to ever throw in the majors, Stu Miller.

I remember all of them, but most of all I remember a pair of virtual rookies named Tom Haller and Chuck Hiller, because they were the unknown qualities the Giants needed to push them over the Dodgers that year. Despite the brilliance of the others, without Haller and Hiller San Francisco fans still might be looking for a pennant.

A local scribe, in a fit of exaltation, labeled them "Hiller-Haller-Killer-Diller," and while it didn't quite scan, it did quite often fit, and the sobriquet stuck, at least for 1962.

The year before, with virtually the same people, the Giants had been only a third place team, eight games off the pace set by Cincinnati, and four games behind the Dodgers. Pierce, who never seemed to lose at Candlestick, was deemed by most experts to have been the difference in '62, having come over from the White Sox, along with Don Larsen, in an off-season trade. But Hiller-Haller-Killer-Diller were the real difference.

Actually, Hiller and Haller had been with the team in 1961, having been brought up around mid-season from the Giants' Tacoma farm club in the PCL. Hiller, a left-handed batter, had been hitting .324 for Tacoma, and the year before had led the Texas league in hitting with a .334 average, also whacking a league-leading 47 doubles. The season before that, he had hit .341 in the Northwest League with a league-leading nine triples. He had even shown some power, with 13 home runs and 99 RBI. Hiller had led two leagues in hits, three in putouts, two in assists, two in fielding average. Hiller had, in short, the credentials to replace incumbent second baseman Joey Amalfatano, who was hitting around .250 when Hiller was brought in. But Chuck found the major leagues a bit more difficult than the minors. He finished out the season hitting just .238 for the Giants.

Haller was brought up in '61 to spell the veteran Ed Bailey, a lefty-hitting longball hitter with a low batting average (.238) and some defensive deficiencies. Haller was a fine young defensive catcher who, also swinging from the left side, hit the occasional long ball, but in that first year he was no match for big league pitching, as he hit just .205 in limited duty (30 games, 62 times at bat).

What a difference a year made. The next season the 25-year-old Haller shared duties evenly with Bailey, and between the two of them they were the best hitting catcher in the National League as they combined for 35 home runs (Haller 18, Bailey 17) and 100 RBI (Haller 55, Bailey 45), with Haller hitting .261, Bailey .232. It was to be the second best home run and RBI year Haller ever had. In the World Series against the Yankees, Haller hit a home run and averaged .286.

Hiller, playing 161 games capably at second base, had far and away the best year of his big league life. He hit .276 and scored 94 runs, and then climaxed a Cinderella season by becoming the first National League player to hit a grandslam in the Series.

Haller, now a Giant coach, went on to enjoy 10 more big league seasons — four of them with the hated Dodgers — ending his career in Detroit in 1972.

Hiller wasn't as good or as lucky because, unlike Haller, he was never again really a regular. By 1965 he was sold by the Giants to the Mets, and by 1968 had played his last 11 major league games with Pittsburgh.

Hiller, too, is still in baseball. After a successful six-year stint as a minor league manager, he came back up to the big leagues as a coach with Texas in 1973, and currently is a Kansas City coach.

Hiller-Haller-Killer-Diller — thanks for 1962.

LOCAL NOTES: I had a long chat with Bob McClure, the fine Milwaukee relief pitcher (the best move to first I've ever seen in a high school pitcher) out of Terra Nova High in Pacifica, when the Brewers were in to play Oakland. The former eccentric southpaw, who has converted himself from a hell-raising youth into married maturity, wanted me to give a message to Bud Bresnahan, the Jefferson High basketball coach.

"Tell Bresnahan that his basketball uniform's in Walnut Creek, and that Bud Papadakis is using it when he works out."

And so the mystery of the missing Terra Nova uniform finally has been cleared up for Bresnahan.

When Bresnahan was varsity basketball coach at the Coastside school, a uniform mysteriously disappeared one year. He always suspected the fun-loving McClure but never could prove it.

Papadakis, by the way, also was a Terra Nova basketball player and a friend of McClure's.

Speaking of former Terra Nova baseball players, Daryl Fazzio, who caught for Skyline College's championship baseball team, recently signed with Cleveland for what was reportedly a substantial bonus. Fazzio is a solid defensive catcher who swings from the left side with power.

Oceana High, just down the road from Terra Nova, also recently sent another baseball player into the pro ranks, when Bob Silicani was inked by the Dodgers.

Jack Burgett, the Jefferson varsity football coach who was hired a couple of months ago by San Francisco City College to coordinate the offense, announces that four of his Jeff kids will be following him to City next fall — linebackers Clay Younger and Scott Brandley, quarterback Nolan Smith, and offensive tackle Tony White.

Scott Hamilton, a 10-year-old, recently swam "AAA" time in the 50-yard backstroke to grab first place in his age division at the greater San Mateo County swim meet at the Oceana pool. He did it in 36.7.

Some interesting final, official, Warrior team stats:

They were eighth in the NBA in field goal percentage (48.7). Los Angeles led in that category with 51.7.

In free throw percentage, the Warriors (73.0) were ahead of only Denver (72.0), Detroit (71.7), New Jersey (72.9) and New York (70.1), and tied with Kansas City.

Only four teams had fewer offensive rebounds than the Warriors, but they were ninth best in defensive rebounds and 14th overall.

But, some good news. Only two teams, Cleveland and Washington, had fewer turnovers than the Warriors.

Bad news again. They were next to last in scoring (behind only Chicago's 104.7), with just 105.1 points per game.

However, they had the second best defense, 104.8, to leader Seattle's 103.9.

Colts nod in CCS baseball

By PAUL SALVONI

SAN JOSE — Seldom has a baseball game had a more ironic twist than the one that unfolded in Friday night's Central Coast Section semifinal between El Camino and Carmel high schools.

Make no mistake about it: a baseball team has to have several solid ballplayers to reach the Final Four in the CCS. One-man teams aren't likely to get that far.

Still, 6-0 senior Roger Ruzek was probably the young man most responsible for El Camino's success this year. Good teams generally have at least one solid team leader, and Ruzek — the Colts' top pitcher in addition to being one of their strongest hitters — filled that role admirably.

But fate was not kind to Roger Ruzek this week. He developed the flu with a temperature of 102, 48 hours before Friday night's El Camino-Carmel contest.

Ruzek, scheduled to pitch against Carmel, threw a number of warmup pitches before game time. But he didn't feel right, so he settled into Camino's designated hitter role.

He struck out four times. His teammates managed nine hits, but Carmel cracked 13 and El Camino suffered elimination with a 11-8 loss at PAL Stadium.

"Roger had a virus, and he was in bed for three days this week," said Colt Coach Lou Zuardo. "It's a shame for the team. And it's a shame for the kid. He'd been looking forward to this.

"They hit the ball well, and we made some defensive mistakes. But the kids came back well (after trailing 9-2), and we were just a basehit away in the fifth."

After four and a half innings, Carmel was cruising along with a seven-run lead. But El Camino hadn't won 10 of its previous 11 games out of sheer luck. The Colts came roaring back in the bottom of the fifth inning.

With one away, centerfielder Jeff Pettigrew, Camino's leadoff hitter, lined a 375-foot home run over the left field wall, and that seemed to light the spark for the Colts. Al Hoffer then walked on a 3-2 pitch, Merlin Nelson lined a solid single to left and Brian Humphrey grounded a single through the left side of the infield, loading the bases for El Camino.

After a strikeout, Mark McQueary, who enjoyed a 3-for-4 evening at the plate, grounded a well-placed single down the third base line, plating Hoffer and Nelson for 9-5. The Colts were back in the ballgame. Humphrey and McQueary both took an extra base when the ball was misplayed. Guy Buckowatz then hit a ground ball off the glove of Carmel pitcher Pat Kelly, whose throw to first base was late; Humphrey scored from third on the play, and McQueary advanced from second to third. Ken Lehane hit a chopper to shortstop; Carmel's John Lucido fielded the ball and threw to second for an attempted forceout, but second-baseman Joe Limov dropped the ball, enabling McQueary to score from third.

When Mark Evans was hit by a pitch, Camino had the bases loaded again — with Pettigrew coming to bat. (Evans, struck on the right kneecap by the ball, had to leave the contest. It was feared he may have suffered a fractured or broken kneecap.)

But Pettigrew hit a ground ball to Lucido at shortstop, and Lucido beat pinch-runner Ron Doane to the bag at second — barely — for an inning-ending forceout. Camino had trimmed Carmel's lead to 9-7, but that was as close as the Colts were to get.

Carmel picked up single runs in the sixth and seventh, making it 11-7. Those runs would look very big before the game was over.

Fittingly, however, El Camino didn't go down in the bottom of the seventh without one heckuva struggle.

After a strikeout, McQueary cracked a solid single to left-center and Buckowatz drew a walk on four straight pitches. Then Ken Lehane drew a walk on a high 3-2 pitch, loading the bases — and bringing the potential tying run to the plate.

But, alas, it wasn't in the cards for El Camino. Pinch-hitter Brad McAdam grounded out to third, plating McQueary for 11-8 and advancing the runners. But now there were two men out. Pettigrew drew a walk to load the bases again, but Camino's season came to an end when Hoffer popped out to shortstop, marking the second time in three innings that the Colts had left the bases loaded.

Freshman Andy Leonard, 15, drew the Colts' starting assignment on the mound and was effective in the early going, striking out four of the first seven hitters he faced and five of the first 10. But Leonard ran into trouble in the third and was replaced by Evans. Kevin Lehane finished up on the hill for El Camino after Evans suffered his knee injury.

"They hit the ball well," Pettigrew said. "We didn't have a scouting report on them, so, since Andy's a fast pitcher, I usually play them to swing late. They were hitting the ball to center a lot, though, and by the fourth or fifth I was playing them straightaway.

"I don't know — we didn't seem to have as much life as usual. Maybe it was the heat, to some degree."

Pettigrew said the fact that Ruzek was unable to pitch didn't hurt the Colts' general frame of mind before the start of the game.

"We have a lot of confidence in Andy," said Pettigrew. "He threw an awesome game for us last week (against Burlingame, which was beaten 13-5 by El Camino)."

Carmel's Dave Spear is out trying to steal second base as El Camino's Brian Humphrey gets a perfect throw from catcher Merlin Nelson in fifth inning of Friday night's CCS playoff semifinal at PAL stadium in San Jose. El Camino was eliminated from the post-season tournament, 11-8.

Hillsdale, Carlmont tied for No. 1 ranking

It's a pity that Carlmont and Hillsdale high schools' softball teams never met during the season. It would have been a battle royal. Both squads are so similar — featuring good defense, outstanding hitting and young but quick-to-mature pitchers.

In fact, the teams look so similar that they both have been accorded the number one ranking in this season's final softball rankings.

In the Central Coast Section playoffs this past week both the Scots and the Knights whipped Aptos (Carlmont by a score of 10-3 and Hillsdale by 8-2) and both lost a close game to the eventual CCS champion, Prospect High of Saratoga.

Carlmont fell 7-6 to Prospect in the semifinals while Hillsdale strung it out to nine innings before falling to the Panthers 5-3.

Actually, Hilldale and Carlmont, league champions in the Mid-Peninsula and South Peninsula Athletic leagues respectively, were supposed to have met for a preseason game. But it rained that day, forcing a cancellation that scheduling problems would not allow to be made up.

Nate Crosby, Tashjian tie in NorCal golf

SAN FRANCISCO — Nate Crosby of Burlingame High and John Tashjian of Mills High tied for second place Monday in the Northern California prep golf tournament at Harding Park.

Crosby and Tashjian each shot a two-over-par 74, finishing one stroke behind winner John Pirotte of Carmel.

Vintage High of Napa won the team championship by one stroke of Jesuit of Sacramento. Murray Stoltz of Jesuit fired a 71, best round of the day, but that did not count in the individual tournament, which Stoltz had not qualified for.

Pirotte double-bogeyed the 7th and birdied the 9th to finish the front nine at 37, 1 over par; he bogeyed the 13th and birdied the 17th to stay at par the rest of the way.

Crosby had an eventful front nine, triple-bogeying the 333-yard par 3 No. 5 and then coming back for birdies on 7 and 8. Crosby finished the front nine in even par 36, one stroke ahead of Pirotte (who was playing in a different foursome), but carded bogeys on the 12th and 17th (trees and a water hazard on the latter bothered quite a few of the 14 individual entrants).

SSF Legion nine rallies to edge SM

The South San Francisco American Legion baseball team opened its 1979 league season with a 4-3 victory over visiting San Mateo A. L. Post 82 Friday evening at Southwood Junior High.

San Mateo, now 6-5 overall this season, out-hit South City 12-8. Bob McMillan rapped three doubles for San Mateo, and a two-run single by Scott Hall gave the visitors a short-lived 3-2 edge in the top of the fifth inning.

But South City picked up a single run in the bottom of the fifth to tie the score at 3-3. And Post 82 hurt itself as the contest progressed by stranding a dozen base-runners.

In the last of the ninth, South City picked up an unearned run to win it. With two outs and a runner on second base, South City's George Bird drew a walk. South City's next hitter smacked a ground ball to San Mateo's second-baseman, who bobbled the ball, picked it up and threw the ball away at first base. The throw went wide up the line, and South City's lead runner scored.

In a non-league Joe DiMaggio game at Mills High Friday evening, host Millbrae defeated Alameda behind the sharp pitching of Burlingame High right-hander Kevin Walsh and Ron Thomson, a junior right-hander from Capuchino High. Walsh went four innings and Thomson hurled the last three frames.

El Camino tipped in consolation

SAN JOSE — El Camino High may have only finished fourth in the Central Coast Section baseball finals after dropping the consolation game to Monta Vista 6-3 Saturday, but overall, says Coach Lou Zuardo, it's been a heck of a season.

"We did very well," said Zuardo. "The kids felt good about the year. It was very successful.

"Just getting into the CCS finals is difficult. It's nice to say we made it. I thought we had a chance to make it into the finals Friday. It seemed we were only a break or two away. But that doesn't take away from the excellent finish we had to get this far."

El Camino began its season strong, looking much like the powerhouse it's been in the past. Then came the Easter Tournament, where the entire team fell into a hitting slump, and victories were at a premium.

But the Colts came on strong in the North Peninsula League and earned the at-large spot in the Region I CCS finals. El Camino overwhelmed Burlingame in the final game to earn the right to move into CCS play at P.A.L. stadium in San Jose.

Against Monta Vista, the Colts went with pitcher Roger Ruzek, a quality hurler who has been suffering from a virus recently. Ruzek didn't have it. He gave up six runs and nine hits.

Designated hitter Mark Evans held the lone hot bat for the Colts, grabbing three of the four team hits and driving in all three runs with a pair of homers. Evans had been injured in the Friday game and had been doubtful for Saturday's contest.

Braves win PSPA opener

PALO ALTO — The Burlingame Braves got their 1979 Peninsula Semi-Pro Association baseball season rolling on a winning note Sunday, beating New Pisa Restaurant 5-4 at Baylands Park.

Burlingame trailed 4-2 after five innings, but the Braves scored single tallies in the sixth, seventh and eighth frames to register the victory.

"Their lack of a relief pitcher was a very big factor," said Burlingame Manager Art Belli. "Their starter got tired toward the end, but had to go the whole way."

Capuchino High graduate Al Brondolo went the distance on the hill for the Braves, recording two strikeouts and walking three New Pisa hitters. Brondolo gave up 10 hits — but then, the Braves tagged 11.

In Sunday's other PSPA season opener, University of San Francisco defeated Palo Alto 5-3.

Silver knocks council

Daly City Planning Commission Vice Chairman Richard Silver has attacked the City Council for rejecting a 16-unit condominium project last week the Planning Commission had approved.

The council turned down a request May 29 for a zone change that would have allowed the 16 units to be built at 1624 Bryant St. They did so after hearing citizens complain that it would generate too much traffic and confusion in their neighborhood.

Silver called the council's remarks "cheap shots" and accused the council of not properly reviewing the proposal.

He said the Planning Commission had discussed the project at least three times and added, "We spent many hours hearing testimony and receiving input on this project from everyone concerned, including the neighbors. For any councilman to express surprise that the project made it through the commission is, to me, a sign that that councilman didn't do his homework."

Silver explained that the developer had modified his proposal to overcome the objections of persons who spoke before the commission.

"If the council is going to reverse Planning Commission actions with such poorly thought out reasoning, perhaps serving on the Planning Commission is a waste of time," he said.

When they vetoed the zone change, councilmen noted they previously had voiced concerns about building such a dense project.

Pacifica wants road to replace Sharp Park

By HEIDI VAN ZANT

The Pacifica City Council is not satisfied with just making curvy Sharp Park Road better — it wants a new road constructed along an adjacent corridor that cuts through Skyline College.

Council members agreed this week that a new four-lane road should be constructed at Highway 1 near Mori's Point Road to connect with College Drive, which would be expanded from two to four lanes. The cost, using 1977 figures, would be $10.4 million.

The recommendation will be forwarded to the California Transportation Commission, which in late June is to decide the alternate to extending Highway 380 to Pacifica.

After two decades of debate, the commission decided several months ago not to extend the highway to Pacifica from San Bruno. The council was asked instead to review several alternates suggested by the state Department of Transportation.

State transportation officials have said Federal Aid Urban funds can be used to make safety improvements to Sharp Park Road, and the city of Pacifica will have to pay only 14 percent of the costs.

City Manager Al St. Cyr had recommended Monday that the council leave the road where it is, but remove some curves, construct a safety barrier and expand the lower portion from three to four lanes.

He said it would cost between $5.3 million and $5.7 million to improve the road.

However, at Councilman Nick Gust's suggestion, the council opted Tuesday to support construction of a new road through a corridor that lies between Vallemar and the present Sharp Park Road. College Drive would be used to connect the road with Skyline Boulevard.

Paul Hensley of the state Department of Transportation said Thursday that he was "surprised" by the council's position, because it apparently is contradictory to the instructions from the CTC.

He said he understood that Pacifica was to look only at alternates for improving Sharp Park Road and the Alternate "K" the council adopted calls for an entirely new road.

Hensley, who has had a deep involvement with the Highway 380 extension issue, said he had seen "no real support" for this alternate during the years of discussions.

Apparently there was some confusion after the vote Tuesday. The council kept incorrectly referring to the improvement by the wrong designation, leading some to believe it merely wanted to construct a new lower portion of the road, retaining the present upper portion of Sharp Park Road.

Council members said later they had agreed on the route to which they referred but had used the wrong number.

In voting for the new corridor, the council rejected two alternates that called for new lanes to be constructed north of Gypsy Hill.

Residents living below Gypsy Hill formed the East Sharp Park Coalition to fight those proposals. The council previously had given the group a warm reception when it made a presentation to the council several weeks ago.

Sharp Park Road is the city's main east-west lateral, connecting Skyline Boulevard with Highway 1. The curvy road is considered dangerous to drive because of its sharp turns and thick fog.

Police Chief Tony Guardino reportedly has stated that the record of 41 accidents per year makes it the city's most dangerous roadway.

Councilman Gust was the strongest advocate for opening up a new Sharp Park Road corridor. He said the present road was meant only to be "a cow trail."

"We've been held back," he said in reference to rescinding the Highway 380 extension. "This would be a good substitute."

While Councilman Mark Savage, who opposed this route, noted it would cost more money to accept this alternate, Gust said Pacifica never has received its share of an east-west lateral.

"It's our time to say this is the best for the city of Pacifica," he said. "Let's look at the future."

With Councilman Fred Howard seconding the motion, Gust moved that the council support building a new, four-lane road from Highway 1 near Mori's Point Road to College Drive.

Statements on the council's position will be forwarded to Caltrans, the state director of transportation and the city's elected representatives.

Jane Baker, mayor of San Mateo, has been elected vice chairman.

Smith succeeds Councilwoman Jeannine Hodge, former mayor of Brisbane, in the position.

Stevan Chandler of San Mateo has been named Nation Chief of the San Mateo-Burlingame YMCA Indian Guide program. His son, Aaron, 8, has been named Little Nation Chief for the area.

Men, women to vie in air race

Men outnumber women as entrants in the seventh annual 400-mile "Mini-Derby" proficiency air race from Hayward Airport June 9.

There were 23 male contestants and 18 female pilots entered as the June 1 deadline passed.

Women, men and mixed crews are eligible in the annual aviation competition sponsored by a woman's pilot group, the Golden West Chapter of the Ninety-Nines.

Founded by Amelia Earhart and 98 other early women pilots, the group is open only to female fliers.

This event is named for the former "Powder Puff Derby" air race for women, but has traditionally held open a few spots for male competitors. This year, those "few" have become "many."

During a press preview Thursday, publicity person Jeanne Abramson of Hillsborough distributed lists of entrants — eight male teams, eight mixed male-female teams, and only five all-women pilot pairs.

Pilots entered in the skill test will come from as far south as Hollywood, as far north as Bend, Ore., and as far east as Wichita, Kan., Mrs. Abramson said.

Aircraft include a number of single-engined Cessnas and Pipers, and two Beechcraft, she said.

Purpose of the contest is to determine which pilot team is most proficient in computing a flight path over a 400-mile triangular route that will not be announced until just before the race, predicting time en route, fuel consumption and other factors, with most accuracy.

San Mateo Mayor Jane Baker and Hayward Mayor Ilene Weinreb took part in the press preview, as mayors of the cities most directly involved.

Chairman Patricia Forbes said the 400-mile route will include four "fly-by" check points and one optional fuel stop. Aircraft are limited to planes which can maintain a cruise speed of 85 miles per hour.

Winners will be announced Saturday night at an awards banquet in the Prime Rib Inn at Hayward Airport.

The Gamesman

Matching wits with 'Mr. Big'

By RICHARD C. MOON

Remember those scenes from the James Bond movies and novels? The ones where Bond is matching wits with Mr. Big across the gaming table? The room is crowded with beautiful women and men dressed in tuxedos. The air is tense. Mr. Big is head of an international criminal organization and something dreadful seems to hang on the turn of the cards.

I never really understood what was going on but the game was always Baccarat.

Baccarat is now one of the most popular games in Reno and Las Vegas, although I know James Bond didn't play it there. His haunts were places like Monte Carlo.

Baccarat, in its present form, is a game that gained popularity in France about 1490 during the reign of Charles VIII. It also is known as "Chemin de Fer" and "Baccara."

During the early 1950s the game was introduced into Nevada casinos under the name of Shimmy, but it didn't catch on until 1958 when the Sands Hotel Casino in Las Vegas started calling it Baccarat — perhaps under the influence of James Bond. Shimmy disappeared and casinos all over the state began having Baccarat gamss.

Baccarat is a very simple card game (once you study the rules) in which from two to as many players as there are player spaces available can play. A usual layout will have room for nine or 12. The "banker" plays against only one player at a time, but any or all of the players may bet on that one player's hand against the bank, provided the bank has enough money to cover the bets.

Chem de Fer and Baccarat are played exactly the same except that in Chem de Fer the casino operators take no risk as the players bet against each other.

In addition to the "layout," you also need a card-dealing box called a shoe.

Eight standard decks of 52 cards, four red-backed and four blue-backed, normally are used, although some games use only six decks.

The object of the game is to win a coup by holding a combination of two or three cards totaling nine or as close as possible to nine, or to a digit number ending in nine. A count of 19 has a value of nine while a count of 23 has a value of three. The ace is the lowest value card, counting as one. Face cards count was 10 and all other cards are valued at their face. Suits have no value.

John Scarne's "Encyclopedia of Games" has an excellent description of the game and an illustration of the layout which you can purchase or make yourself.

Just remember that when you are playing, you are James Bond and the other guy is Mr. Big.

Jefferson High School's traditional Senior Tea, honoring senior mothers and girls, was coordinated this year by Mrs. Linda McLean and Mrs. Linda Clemons, senior class advisors. The 1979 tea was May 22.

Starting the afternoon off was a warm welcome from Mrs. McLean, followed by a ballet dance by student Una Simmers to the song "Fellings."

The first part of the fashion show featured the theme "Love Can Be a Casual Affair." Jeff students and teachers who participated in modeling in the show were Charlie Banfield, Florinda Bartolome, Sandra Beaver, Joel Campos, Florence Cosmides, Mary Cosmides, Miss Diane Cresci, Carol DeMarlo, Genevieve Giaccani, Jackie Grant, Ingrid Halliquist, Roslyn Hamilton, Amanda Lansang, Teresa Lopez, Alice Lozendo, Mr. Mike Lucero, Lance Martin, Linda Martinez, Cynthia Miller, Tessie Opias, Frank Pare, Angel Rajewski, Lee Randall, Mark Riedell, Richard Rogers, Ilen Sales, Janet Tagawa, Debbie Tringali, and Lorraine Wilson.

There was also a presentation by Miss Insel's Bachelor Lab class with the theme "Macho Man."

Entertainment during intermission was provided by Teresa Lopez, who sang "To Sir, With Love" accompanied by Glenn Scurlock on the piano, and a dance routine by Una Simmers to "Dance, Dance, Dance." The second part of the fashion show, with the theme "All Love is Definitely a Serious Affair," followed.

The Filipino Club also staged a traditional dance, called "SingKil'."

The class of 1981's last dance of the year May 18 featured Doctor Funk and attracted 250-300 people and was a big success.

The Jefferson Concert and Stage Band had its annual Spring Concert on May 24.
